Normal Fascism

Have you noticed that people are getting really fucking right wing lately?

Socialist principles have never been popular within our illustrious imperial core. I'm not sure I need to go into all the reasons for that here, but ever since covid-19 burst onto the scene even our nominally liberal parties have become completely captured by right wing principles. The Joy of Work, clamping down on immigration, crushing LGBT and women's rights, and on and on it goes.

It's understandable. During the height of the pandemic, all anyone could think about was returning to normal. It was an alluring prospect. I wanted it too, more than anything.

But normal has never come back. Covid-19 never went away.

For a brief moment it looked as though the balance of power was fundamentally under threat. Everyone could see where power in society really is; not with the people who have money, but the people who keep food on the shelves, kids educated, the ill tended. People whispered breathlessly about how things might change; how society might be altered to recognise the people that actually make it function.

Then government and capital stomped down real hard on that.

A lot of voices don't have any place to go in politics any more, because the political classes have zero'd in on their target audience. Not people who want change, but people who want a return to normal.

Of course, they can't actually return to normal.

Normal is dead. What they can do is trade off a few things for the idealised picture of normal that exists in a certain segment of the population's heads.

Our politicians have calculated that this section of the population will trade continual illness and lower life expectancy in exchange for a return to 'traditional values'. Crush minorities, reassert patriarchal control, return to 'traditional values' and the Nation State, and that'll be enough for the white, heterosexual, male individuals, and their allies, that our society has always been structured to support.

They believe that the support of this section of the population is all that they need to maintain control and ensure that nothing need change economically. By returning to this fascist parody of Normal, they can keep themselves and their backers insulated from the reality we all now share.

It's our job to prove them wrong.

Let's get to work.

Stop Fucking Doing Taxonomy

You have better things to do than queer taxonomy, and I have better things to do that call you ou for doing it, but if you're actually in need of a stern telling off, read on.

Taxonomy is for scientists to classify things they study. Like that's a four-hooved long-snouted creature that wallows in mud to cool itself? That's a pig! Useful to biologists, but when you start taking this approach to people, it gets kinda... Sus (pun intended).

Did we ever define tranny or dyke or faggot before starting these digital diatribes? Do we even ask contributors to prove their queer cred before adopting those labels? Fuck no! Aside from not wanting to be fucking gender cops, we haven't got the time!

See, you can quibble over who gets to be lesbian or trans or whatever labels you're building a fence around, or you can go out and actually make community with people, and use your labels as flags to unify around.

Lesbians are women loving women? Lesbians are non-men loving non-men? No! Lesbians are those who are in community with other lesbians! Don't like that someone else is calling themself a lesbian? Don't hang out with them then!

You can take your measuring instruments out and ascertain what quanta of queerness others have, and fit them into your various boxes that belong on some wiki somewhere, or you can grow the fuck up and live your life.

We're dying out there and they're certainly not doing taxonomy. They see three genders:

Men.
Collaborators. and Freaks.

And again, those aren't about ticking boxes on a diagnostic form. Those are communities, and I know which one I'm in.

Do you?

be a sick fuck
be a braindead insurrectionary
be a radical faggot
BOTTOMS - UNIONISE!
for the glory of the new sexual revolution
XOXO

We Can't Catch Them

But they catch us on the CCTV

Look at what is happening in Palestine. To be specific: look at how the Israeli state is watching and controlling Palestinians. Sophisticated next-gen surveillance tech is feeding insidious machine learning structures, mapping biometrics with net traffic, tapped phone calls and „suspected terrorist activity". Manufacturing a 24/7 panopticon, an open air prison, with the wardens equipped with the tools and weapons to strike every inmate the algorithm deems a target.

And your fucking government is investing in it. The Palestinians are the live-fire Guinea pigs for the state security and murder machine. Your government intends to use this on you as well!

Stop thinking that techno-dystopia is a thing to happen eventually. It is happening right the fuck now. And you are already subjected to it whenever you walk past a CCTV in public.

The genocide in Palestine will continue and the technology used to perpetrate it is getting more ruthlessly efficient by the day. So please do the smart thing and vandalize/sabotage every surveillance cam you can, get your OpSec up and fight your government and the Military Industrial Complex, make the genocide unprofitable!

Cause like in history: fascism will bring home, what colonialism did elsewhere
